

University Development

Need help managing your university's growth and development?

Universities, colleges, and other educational institutions rely on ULI Advisory Services to shape real estate asset management, campus development, and neighborhood revitalization strategies. Panels bring a third-party perspective that can help institutions and their local communities work together to address the unique land use, transportation, and housing needs of academic communities. Advisory Service Panels are a good way to begin a dialogue towards a solution.

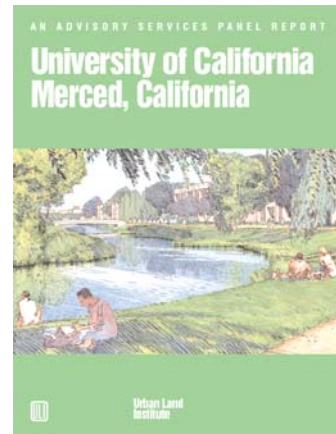

All ULI panel teams include professionals with diverse points of view—engineers, developers, planners, designers, investors, market analysts, and public officials—who work together to generate grounded, innovative solutions.

Sponsors for these panels include:

Universities
Local Governments
Business Improvement Districts
Redevelopment Authorities

Recent panels on this topic include:

Point Park University, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania
University of Nevada, Las Vegas
University of California, Merced
University of New Orleans
George Washington University, Washington, DC
NJIT, Newark, New Jersey

ULI convened a panel to craft a vision for the development of the new University of California at Merced into a sustainable academic community fully integrated into a new mixed use neighborhood.
