Need help with your downtown revitalization?

Beginning in Louisville, Kentucky in 1947, Advisory Service panels have assisted cities large and small to attract diverse residents and new development to downtown. Effective downtown revitalization requires market-supported economic development, engaged developers, innovative urban design, and consistent implementation. Advisory Service Panels provide an experienced team of market, development, design, and implementation professionals to help local governments, business improvement districts, and others shape downtown revitalization strategies. Recent panels explored the redevelopment of industrial land adjacent to downtown Hartford, Connecticut, the repositioning and redevelopment downtown shopping malls in Rochester, New York and Utrecht, The Netherlands, and other issues.

ULI has recently completed the following Downtown Revitalization Panels:
