

About ULI

The Urban Land Institute is a nonprofit research and education organisation supported by its members.

Founded in 1936, the institute now has over 30,000 members in 90 countries, representing the entire spectrum of real estate development and investment. In Europe, we have over 2,000 members supported by staff in London and Frankfurt.

ULI brings together public and private sector leaders with a common commitment to improving professional standards, seeking the best use of land and following excellent practices. We are a think tank, providing advice and best practices in a neutral setting – valuable for practical learning. By engaging experts from various disciplines we can arrive at advanced answers to problems which would be difficult to achieve independently.

We want you to join and hope you will want to support us. If you're up for the challenge of being a leader, then ULI is the organisation you'll want to be a part of.

Be a ULI leader. Join us now.
