PROLOGUE

Conference Overview

European property markets have long defied gravity. Is the credit crisis a sign that the laws of nature and market cycles are immutable? Or, is current turbulence a 'correction' and are fundamentals still sound? The one certainty is that 2008 will reward insight and punish ignorance. Investors, developers and advisors who anticipate and adapt their strategies will prosper.

Join ULI in a new venue in Paris for what will be a timely, provocative and informative debate on the implications of current trends for property markets, companies and professionals. From the 'macro to the micro' this year's conference will deliver valuable and candid insights on the challenges and opportunities that will define real estate in Europe in 2008.

What You Will Learn

- Which markets and sectors look set to profit from the storm.
- Is now the time to focus or diversify, to buy or to sell, to seek shelter or go for it.
- Where are deals getting done and who is doing them.
- Key economic and market trends shaping the strategies of international investors.
- How to navigate and network European property development, investment and capital markets.

The Global Economy – Pausing for Breath

Evan Davis, BBC Economics Editor, London,
UK (tbc)

Real estate investment and development is a relatively long term play and utterly dependant on the state of the economy.
In ULI tradition, the conference will kick off with an insightful review of the key global economic risks and trends – what they mean for Europe, and the real estate industry.

10:00-10:15

Info Burst: Superstar Cities, Greg Clark,
ULI EMEA Senior Fellow, London, UK

Which cities will be the leading cities at the end of the 21st Century? Will London and New York who led the way in the 20th Century still be at the top? The very cities with which London and New York are competing for business – long standing centres such as Tokyo and Hong Kong
– as well as the urban centres in emerging regions, such as Shanghai and Dubai
– share many of the same challenges.

10:15 – 11:15

Concurrent Sessions:

The Big Picture – Key Markets in Perspective

Real estate is a global industry competing regionally and locally for attention and capital. Does diversification reduce or increase risk? Which markets will stand fare on the global stage? Join one of these concurrent sessions to learn where the opportunities and challenges are.

These small, intimate sessions are where you can find out what is really going on and identify where the opportunities and challenges lie.

Market Spotlights on:

(I) Turkey

Leader: Hakan Kodal, General Manager, KREA Gayrimenkul/Real Estate, Istanbul, Turkey

(II) Russia

Leader: Arnaud Dubois, Managing Director-Partner, MAGIM, Moscow, Russia

(III) Emerging Europe

(IV) Germany

Leader: Reinhard Kutscher, Chairman of Management Board, Union Investment Real Estate, Hamburg, Germany

(V) Italy

Leader: Luca de Ambrosis Ortigara, Partner, Realty Partners, Milan, Italy

Finance Track:

(VI) EU REIT

A coalition of the European real estate industry has asked the European Commission for EU REIT legislation providing a pan-European property investment vehicle for companies and savers. Leaders of the coalition will discuss how an EU REIT will overcome the obstacles that cross-border investors face today, increase market safety and provide the European scale needed for specialised real estate. The audience will be invited to join the debate. Participants will receive a copy of the Maastricht University report "The EU REIT and the Internal Market for Real Estate."

Wolfgang Kälberer, Head of EU Representation, German Mortgage Banks, Brussels, Belgium

Michael MacBrien, Director General,

European Property Federation, Brussels, Belgium

Joaquim Ribeiro, Finance Director, Sonae Sierra/Chairman of the EU REIT Coalition, Porto, Portugal

Simon Rubinsohn, Chief Economist, RICS, London, UK

(VII) JESSICA

EU Structural Funds can now be used to capitalise new urban development funds. These funds are aimed at partnering with private investors to take forward urban investment and can provide equity capital, repayable grants, guarantees, or endowments. How are these new urban development funds working? And what part should private sector developers and investors play in their design and development?

Brian Field, Senior Economist, European Investment Bank, Luxembourg

(VIII) Value Capture Finance

Value Capture Finance is a broad term applied to mechanisms which leverage some of the financial value created by the impact of development to help finance the infrastructure and other costs of making that development work. Is TIF, the American approach, the best, or can some of Europe's approaches start to add up? Come and here what is happening in UK, Netherlands, France, and Germany to capture development value to promote local investment.

Andrew Carter, Director, Rocket Science UK, London, UK

12:45-14:15 General Lunch

Women in Real Estate Lunch (by invitation)

14:15-15:00

Plenary Keynote Session:

Climate and the Built Environment

Sir David King, Chief Scientific Advisor to HM Government, London, UK

"Climate change is the biggest global challenge we face collectively. We must act, and quickly, both to reduce the future impacts of climate change, and to adapt to those impacts that we cannot avoid. The built environment and urban development is a key to that challenge" Sir David King.

Sir David will discuss the challenge of building a sustainable urban environment in the face of the problems of planet-wide climate change. Learn how to align investment and development strategies with long term drivers of success.

15:00-15:15 Info Burst

U.S. Sub-prime Market Crisis

Steve Blank, ULI Senior Resident Fellow-Finance, Washington DC, US

Drawing on ULI's breadth of knowledge, join Senior Resident Fellow, Blank, to learn the truth about the US sub-prime mortgage meltdown and how it has affected the commercial property industry.

15:15-16:15

Concurrent sessions:

(I) Capital Markets in Transition: Seeing Through the Fog

The session will look back at the events of the past six months in the European capital markets, assess the state of the markets today, and use the lessons of the past (both recent and not so recent) to anticipate how conditions in the investment and debt markets will unfold in 2008 and beyond. What are the opportunities and threats? What will change? Who will be the winners and losers? What are the lessons learned?

Moderator: Marc Mogull, Managing Partner,

Benson Elliot Capital Management, London, UK

Panellists: Eric Sasson, Managing Director - Europe Real Estate, Carlyle, Paris, France

Ed Siskind, Managing Director, Goldman Sachs International, London, UK

Ellen Brunsberg, European Head of the Securitised Products Group, Morgan Stanley, London, UK

Doug Tiesi, Head of Europe, RBS Real Estate Finance, London, UK

(II) Infrastructure Investment: Lost Cost or Performing Asset?

Public infrastructure from airports, rail and roads to schools, hospitals and prisons are for sale by cash strapped governments. The quality of this infrastructure is vital to the success of a city and its property markets. Who is buying these assets and why? Where do the opportunities lie and what does the trend mean for the real estate industry?

Moderator: Maureen McAvey, Executive Vice President, ULI, Washington DC, US

Panellists: Ad Buisman, Chairman, Ernst & Young European Real Estate Hospitality and Construction Group, Apeldoorn, The Netherlands

John McCarthy, Head of Europe, RREEF Infrastructure, London, UK

(III) Solving the EU's Housing Crisis: Can Eco Towns and Low Carbon Cities do it?

Population growth and mobility means that housing demand in some parts of Europe is now massively in excess of supply as labour markets grow faster and stronger than housing supply. But growth must be managed to deliver lower carbon emissions. How can this be achieved? Are Eco Towns and Low Carbon Cities the answer and how can we deliver them?

David Cowans, Group Chief Executive, Places for People, Preston, UK (invited)

(IV) What's Valuable about Sustainability?

Previously urban development has seen the provision of social infrastructure as being the preserve of the public sector. Not any more. Governments are increasingly expecting the real estate community to contribute to both its funding and provision. Building on the findings of ULI's research, join this session to discuss how investment in social infrastructure can protect and enhance the value of investments and the challenges and opportunities of sustainable development.

(V) "European Real Estate – a Brand Worth Protecting?" Workshop

Why does our industry have a reputation for being more part of the problem than part of the solution? What changes do we need to embrace to enhance image and expand our potential to make a difference? Help us put together an outline of steps to rectify negative perceptions and build a strong brand for the industry.

16:15-16:45 Break

16:45-17:30

Plenary Keynote Session:

A Changing America: Implications for Europe and the World
